to read the cookie. The one that reads the cookie is koa-bodyparser and the one that doesn't is koasession. Something like this: `var bodyParser = require('koa-bodyparser'); var session = require('koa-session'); app.use(session());

app.use(session({ cookieParser: false }));
app.use(bodyParser());` When the request comes into the app, for example `/api/1/v2/key/`, I can read the cookie with the bodyParser middleware, but then I get the error: Error: Sorry, can't read 'Cookie' with koa-session-session Is there some way to tell koa-session to use koa-bodyparser as an intermediate layer? A: I got around the problem like this:

var bodyParser = require('koa-bodyparser');
var session = require('koa-session');
app.use(session({ cookieParser: false }));
app.use(session({ cookiePath: '/' }));
app.use(bodyParser()); app.use(bodyParser());
